Just five years to a day from the time that Prinzip cast the fatai bomb that set in motion the war machiae of Germany and made the world a wreck of carnage, peace was signed at Versailles, in the chamber of the deputies where the history of France is enshrined with many a memento, where the Iron Chancellor of Prussia crushed the Republic beneath his hand forty years ago, Germany the vanquished the conquered, cringing and crying for mercy, wrote the signature that fixed her doom as a world power. And France, gloating and triumphant, watched the proceedings with a ieer of scorn. This is Germany's first defeat, France's sfirst triumph over a Toutonic power. She could never have done it without the aid of two other Teutonic powers-England and America.
